Case 2:16-cv-01065-DLR Document 152 Filed 07/19/16 Page 2 of 20

Intervenor-Defendants' Motion to Dismiss (Docs. 108, 128) explained why Plaintiffs fail to state a claim under § 2 of the Voting Rights Act ("VRA") or as to the constitutionality of H.B. 2023.<sup>1</sup> Plaintiffs' Motion for a Preliminary Injunction on H.B. 2023 (Docs. 84, 85) (the "Motion") just further confirms that they are unlikely to succeed on the merits of any claim or that they will suffer any harm, much less irreparable harm, 6 after H.B. 2023 takes effect. Their pre-enforcement facial challenge to the law must fail.

7 "A facial challenge to a legislative Act is, of course, the most difficult challenge to mount successfully, since the challenger must establish that no set of circumstances exists under which the Act would be valid." United States v. Salerno, 481 U.S. 739, 745 (1987). One reason that "[f]acial challenges are disfavored" is because they "rest on speculation." 10 11 Wash. State Grange v. Wash. State Republican Party, 552 U.S. 442, 449-50 (2008). 12 Armed with only speculation, Plaintiffs now seek an extraordinary remedy to enjoin H.B. 2023. But, Plaintiffs have not come close to carrying their heavy burden to justify such extraordinary relief, and so the Motion must be denied.

I. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

In March 2016, H.B. 2023<sup>2</sup> was passed to prevent fraud and to make the early 16 17 voting laws consistent with in-person voting laws. Hearing on H.B. 2023 Before S. Comm. 18 on Gov't, 2016 Leg., 52nd Leg. 2d Reg. Sess. (Ariz. 2016) (attached as Ex. 1) (statement 19 of E. Spencer, State Election Director ("Mr. Spencer")), at 61:14-16 ("[t]his bill merely 20 catches us up to the evolution in voting practices that our state has experienced in the last 21 20 years."); see Decl. of M. Ugenti-Rita (Ex. 2), ¶ 45. H.B. 2023 provides:

<sup>23</sup> <sup>1</sup> The Motion to Dismiss also questioned whether any Plaintiff had standing to bring a preenforcement challenge against H.B. 2023. (Doc. 108, at 4 n.2) Plaintiffs' Motion makes 24 their standing even more questionable because, as discussed below, no individual Plaintiff 25 or member of an associational Plaintiff asserts any reliance on ballot collection to vote.

Furthermore, Intervenor-Plaintiff Bernie, 2016, Inc., will apparently lose standing 26 altogether in this matter shortly, as the campaign does not represent the presumptive 27 nominee.

61:7-10. Without it, those with nefarious purposes could collect ballots and deliver them—or not—as they saw fit, with no voter recourse. See Decl. of S. DiCiccio (Ex. 5), ¶ 12; Ex. 2, ¶¶ 46-47; see Decl. of S. Arellano (Ex. 6), ¶ 8; see also Decl. of R. Valenzuela
(Ex. 7), ¶¶ 18-21 (referencing a ballot harvester impersonating an elections worker); Decl.
of C. Bowen (Ex. 8), ¶¶ 9, 11.

H.B. 2023 is a narrowly tailored, prophylactic response to legitimate concerns of 6 7 election fraud. Ex. 2, ¶¶ 45-47. The law is limited, only penalizing "a person who 8 knowingly collects voted or unvoted early ballots from another person." A.R.S. § 16-9 1005(H) (emphasis added). The mens rea required—higher than a reckless or negligence standard—is tailored to further the purpose of deterring ballot harvesting.<sup>6</sup> See Ex. 2, ¶ 23 10 11 (allowing flexibility in prosecution depending on nature of offense); Hearing on 12 H.B. 2023 Before H. Comm. on Elections, 2016 Leg., 52nd Leg. 2d Reg. Sess. (Ariz. 13 2016) (attached as Ex. 9) (statement of Mr. Spencer), at 14:5-22 (the intent is "to go after 14 large-scale, knowing, massive collection of ballots"). And the law allows reasonable exceptions. A "family member, household member or caregiver of the voter" can assist a 15 16 voter who may have work obligations or other issues preventing them from personally 17 mailing or delivering a ballot. See Decl. of F. Ahmed, Ex. 10, ¶ 20-21; see Decl. of 18 K. Dang, Ex. 11, ¶ 11. Concerns about voters not having an opportunity to vote without 19 mass ballot collection campaigns are, therefore, unfounded. See Ex. 8, ¶¶ 4, 7.

II. PLAINTIFFS ARE NOT ENTITLED TO A PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION.

The Court may only grant Plaintiffs the "extraordinary remedy" of a preliminary injunction if they "establish that [they are] likely to succeed on the merits, that [they are] likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary relief, that the balance of equities tips in [their] favor, and that an injunction is in the public interest." Winter v. Nat. Res. Def. Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 20, 24 (2008) ("A preliminary injunction is an extraordinary remedy never awarded as of right."). Specifically, related to H.B. 2023:

preliminary injunctions of legislative enactments—because they interfere with the democratic process and lack the safeguards against abuse or error that come with a full trial on the merits—must be granted reluctantly and only upon a clear showing that the injunction before trial is definitely demanded by the Constitution and by the other strict legal and equitable principles that restrain courts.

See Ne. Fla. Chapter of Ass'n of Gen. Contractors of Am. v. City of Jacksonville, Fla., 896

F.2d 1283, 1285 (11th Cir. 1990). Plaintiffs are not entitled to such extraordinary relief.

1. H.B. 2023 does not violate § 2 of the VRA (Count I).

Plaintiffs cannot demonstrate that are likely to succeed on the merits.

Plaintiffs fail to establish they are likely to prevail on their VRA claim (Count I). The Intervenor-Defendant's Motion to Dismiss explained that Plaintiffs could not allege any facts to show that any minor inconvenience on voting from a limited criminal restriction on ballot harvesting denies minorities an equal opportunity to vote. (Doc. 108 at 12-13). Now that Plaintiffs have had the opportunity to provide evidence on the issue, their Motion confirms that the § 2 claim is fundamentally flawed.

16 A § 2 claim has "two critical elements." Lee v. Va. State Bd. of Elections, --- F. Supp. 3d ---, 2016 WL 2946181, at *5 (E.D. Va. May 19, 2016) ("Lee II"). "First, the 17 18 challenged standard, practice, or procedure must impose a discriminatory burden on 19 members of a protected class, meaning that members of the protected class have less 20 opportunity than other members of the electorate to participate in the political process and 21 to elect representatives of their choice." League of Women Voters of N.C. v. N.C., 769 F.3d 224, 240 (4th Cir. 2014) ("LOWV") (internal quotation marks omitted). "Second, 22 23 that burden must in part be caused by or linked to social and historical conditions that 24 have or currently produce discrimination against members of the protected class." Id. 25 Here, neither element is supported with evidence.

a. Plaintiffs offer no evidence of a discriminatory burden.

Plaintiffs fail to provide evidence that H.B. 2023 will impose a "discriminatory burden" on any minority group. See id; see also Gonzalez v. Ariz., 677 F.3d 383, 405 (9th)

Cir. 2012) (§ 2 claim requires proof of "discriminatory results"). They provide no quantitative evidence to show how many minorities in Arizona actually use early voting, much less any comparison to the number of white voters who vote in this manner. Nor do 4 they provide any quantitative evidence concerning the number of minority or white voters who rely on others to collect their early ballot. See Depo. of S. Healy (Ex. 12), 61:6-62:1. 6 And, while Plaintiffs contend that H.B. 2023 will affect voters in rural areas with limited mail, they provide no evidence concerning the racial demographics or the number of voters in these areas who participate in early voting.

9 Rather than providing any evidence to support a disparate impact, Plaintiffs 10 provide speculative and anecdotal declarations from non-experts who contend that they or 11 their organizations have collected early ballots from minority voters. (See, e.g., Doc. 90, 12 Decl. of R. Parraz.) These statements provide no basis, however, for comparing the 13 number of white voters who also have their early ballot collected. And Plaintiffs' experts 14 provide no statistical analysis on the issue. (See Doc. 101-1 (Berman Report) & Doc 139-15 1 (Revised Lichtman Report).) The Court simply cannot determine on the present record 16 whether H.B. 2023 will result in minorities having "less opportunity than other members 17 of the electorate" to vote. LOWV, 769 F.3d at 240. It is just as likely that white voters are 18 impacted by H.B 2023 as much as minorities. See Gonzalez, 677 F.3d at 406 (affirming 19 decision to deny § 2 claim when plaintiffs failed to show that election regulation had any 20 "statistically significant disparate impact" on Latino voters) (internal quotations and 21 citation omitted). Therefore, Plaintiffs are not likely to prevail on their § 2 claim.

b. Plaintiffs have provided no evidence of a causal nexus.

23 Plaintiffs have also failed to produce evidence that the alleged disparate impact on 24 minorities from H.B. 2023 is "caused by or linked to social and historical conditions that 25 have or currently produce discrimination." Lee II, 2016 WL 2946181, at *5. Only 26 discrimination by a state can give rise to a § 2 claim. See Frank v. Walker, 768 F.3d 744, 27 753 (7th Cir. 2014). "That's important, because units of government are responsible for 28 their own discrimination but not for rectifying the effects of other persons'

1 discrimination." Id. (citing Milliken v. Bradley, 418 U.S. 717 (1974)).

Here, Plaintiffs have not identified how any past State discrimination will cause H.B. 2023 to have a disproportionate impact on minorities. They do not show, for example, that State discrimination has caused more minorities to live in rural communities with less mail access.<sup>7</sup> Plaintiffs instead attempt (Doc. 85, at 9) to make a causal 6 connection through allegations of socioeconomic disparities in poverty rates, unemployment, education, transportation, transiency, health, and criminal justice treatment. This attempt fails. First, § 2 "does not require states to overcome societal effects of private discrimination that affect the income or wealth of potential voters." 10 Frank, 768 F.3d at 753 (finding that minorities less likely to obtain photo ID to vote "because they have lower income" not sufficient to support § 2 claim).

12 In addition, Plaintiffs cannot show these alleged socioeconomic disparities deny minorities the equal opportunity to vote. See Expert Report of S. Trende (Ex. 14) ("Trende 13 14 Report"), ¶¶ 83-85 (discussing the failure of Plaintiffs' historian to show causation 15 between potential past discrimination and any effect H.B. 2023 may have on voters). 16 Regardless of socioeconomic status, any eligible adult may vote in-person or participate in early voting by personally mailing or delivering their ballot or giving it to a family 17 18 member, household member, or caregiver for delivery. (See Doc. 12, ¶¶ 94, 96.) The 19 alleged inconvenience imposed by H.B. 2023 is not sufficient to support a § 2 claim. See 20 Lee v. Va. State Bd. of Elections, --- F. Supp. 3d ---, 2015 WL 9274922, at *8-9 (E.D. Va. 21 Dec. 18, 2015) ("Lee I") (dismissing § 2 claim based on alleged inconvenience to voters 22 of long polling lines); Jacksonville Coal. for Voter Prot. v. Hood, 351 F. Supp. 2d 1326, 23 1335 (M.D. Fla. 2004) ("[I]nconvenience" of driving to early voting site and waiting in 24 line "does not result in a denial of 'meaningful access to the political process."").

c. Plaintiffs fail to establish the presence of Senate Factors.

Because Plaintiffs fail to provide evidence concerning the two critical elements of a § 2 claim, this Court need not consider the "Senate Factors."<sup>8</sup> Should the Court reach them, however, the Trende Report (Ex. 14) discusses in detail why consideration of them here undermines the alleged need for a pre-enforcement injunction. Plaintiffs' examples related to voting-related discrimination (first factor) are either not contemporary or do not relate to voting, and Plaintiffs and their expert also ignore positive trends in minority voting turnout and consideration of minority interests in the 2011 redistricting process. Depo. of A. Lichtman (Ex. 15), at 84: 6-9; Expert Report of D. Critchlow (Ex. 16), at 13 (redistricting plan protects the "voting strength of Hispanics and minorities" with structural safeguards). Plaintiffs' analysis of the extent voting is racially polarized (second factor) is far too narrow, with no attempt to correlate party affiliation or assess statewide results and ignoring elections not involving a Hispanic candidate. Ex. 14, ¶ 96-100; Ex. 15, at 193:12-17, 196:11-15, 296:10-297:21; see Johnson v. Mortham, 926 F. Supp. 1460, 1474-75 (N.D. Fla. 1996) (criticizing polarization analysis by Plaintiffs' expert with similar defects). The racial polarization analysis also relies on a draft, incomplete redistricting report. Ex. 14, ¶ 96; Ex. 15, at 189:10-190:5.

Selective examples—completely devoid of acknowledgement of the salutary effects of the most recent redistricting processes for minority voters (see Trende Report, Ex. 14, at ¶ 85(b))—hallmark Plaintiffs' assertions as to the 'history of voting practices that tend to enhance the opportunity for discrimination against minority groups' (third 21 factor). Plaintiffs' analysis of the extent to which minorities bear the effects of past 22 discrimination in socioeconomic areas (fifth factor) fails to compare alleged disparities in 23 Arizona to other states. Ex. 15, at 211:19-212:16. Plaintiffs only provide weak examples 24 of alleged racial appeals in campaigns (sixth factor), with just two from campaigns for 25

Snell & Wilmer

1 state office and no consideration of how the candidates actually fared in the pertinent 2 election. Id. at 217:6-220:4, 304:1-306:5; Ex. 14, ¶126. Similarly, the extent to which minorities have been elected (seventh factor) is accompanied by a narrow analysis that 3 4 ignores (1) how many minorities ran for elected office in Arizona; (2) how Arizona fares 5 against other states; (3) the results of county and municipal elections; and (4) the extreme 6 efforts by the Arizona Independent Redistricting Commission in ensuring competitive districts for minority candidates. Ex. 15, at 221:5-222:9, 224:16-227:7, 306:11-307:4.9 7 8 Plaintiffs also fail to recognize other statewide structural protections and assistance, like 9 the Citizens Clean Elections Commission, which funds candidates to create a more diverse slate of candidates and educates voters in a non-partisan manner.<sup>10</sup> 10

11 Responsiveness to the needs of minorities (eighth factor) is shown in Arizona by a 12 series of legislative enactments, including Medicaid expansion, KidsCare restoration, the independent redistricting process, and the CCEC's efforts. Ex. 14, ¶ 130–34. Plaintiffs' expert admitted not considering these events. Ex. 15, at 227:8-229:19; see also N.C. State Conf. of the NAACP v. McCrory, --- F. Supp. 3d ---, 2016 WL 1650774, at *141 16 (M.D.N.C. Apr. 25, 2016) (criticizing same expert for "purposefully exclud[ing] evidence that contradicted his conclusions"). The extent to which policy underlying the State's use 18 of the practice at issue is tenuous (ninth factor) undermines Plaintiffs' § 2 claim because, 19 as discussed below, H.B. 2023 furthers the legitimate goal of preventing election fraud.

20 2. H.B. 2023 does not severely burden the ability to vote (Count II). 21 In response to Count II, the Intervenor-Defendants' Motion to Dismiss explained 22 Plaintiffs could not state a facially plausible claim that H.B. 2023 violates the 14th 23 Amendment by imposing a "severe" and "unjustified" burden on early voting. (Doc. 108 24 at 14-15). The limited evidence provided in support of Plaintiffs' Motion confirms that

Plaintiffs' analysis of factor seven also improperly relies in part on data concerning 27 appointed judges who only undergo retention elections. Ex. 15, at 225:12-226:13.

See Citizens Clean Elections Commission, http://www.azcleanelections.gov/en/about-28 us/what-is-clean-elections (last visited July 19, 2016).

Plaintiffs cannot prevail on this claim.<sup>11</sup> The alleged "severity" of H.B. 2023 is based 1 2 entirely on conjecture. Plaintiffs have not provided a single declarant asserting that 3 H.B. 2023 will prevent him or her from voting or make it substantially more difficult to do 4 so; neither have depositions revealed such persons. Instead, Plaintiffs provide mere 5 speculation from non-parties who suggest that H.B. 2023 "may" disenfranchise them in an 6 unspecified future election should they neglect to mail their early ballot on time. See Doc. 7 87 (Decl. of T. Anderson) ¶ 13; Doc. 88 (Decl. of S. Pstross) ¶ 10; Doc. 89 (Decl. of R. 8 Friend) ¶13; Doc 91 (Decl. of L. Gillespie) ¶ 14; see also Wash. State Republican Party, 9 552 U.S. at 449-50 ("In determining whether a law is facially invalid [courts] must be careful not to go beyond the statute's facial requirements and speculate about 10 11 'hypothetical' or 'imaginary' cases.").

Plaintiffs reference (Doc. 85, at 12) alleged "voters in rural and Native American communities who do not have mail service," but they have not provided any declarations from anyone living in such a community.<sup>12</sup> Similarly, Plaintiffs speculate (id., at 3) about alleged voters who lack access to a "secure mailbox" and "reliable transportation," but again provide no declarations from anyone who states that these conditions will prevent him or her from voting or make voting significantly more difficult.<sup>13</sup> There is simply no way of determining, on the present record, why these unidentified persons could not use public transportation, a ride from a friend, or some other means to vote in person or to deliver (or have their family member, household member, or caregiver deliver) their early ballot.<sup>14</sup> Mere inconvenience does not constitute a severe burden. See Frank, 768 F.3d at 2 745 ("inconvenience" of obtaining photo ID "surely does not qualify as a substantial 3 burden on the right to vote"); Lee I, 2015 WL 9274922, at *9 ("Inconvenience alone does 4 not qualify as a substantial burden on the right to vote.").

&lt;sup>11</sup> Plaintiffs contend (Doc. 85, at 11) that H.B. 2023 works "in concert with the other policies, practices and procedures challenged in this action" to impose a severe burden on voting. At Plaintiffs' request, full briefing on Plaintiffs' motion for a preliminary injunction on those other issues will not occur until after H.B. 2023 becomes effective.
25 They cannot provide grounds for enjoining enforcement of H.B. 2023.

<sup>26 &</sup>lt;sup>12</sup> Compare Decl. of C. Begay (Ex. 18), ¶¶ 5, 8 (describing partian practices driving mass ballot collection in rural and tribal communities)

The absence of any severe burden is also confirmed by the undisputable fact that 6 H.B. 2023 only regulates early voting. As courts have repeatedly held, voting by early or absentee ballot is not a fundamental right but a privilege granted by states. See, e.g., Brown v. Detzner, 895 F. Supp. 2d 1236, 1238 (M.D. Fla. 2012) ("All parties agree that there is no fundamental right to an early voting option."); Raetzel v. Parks/Bellemont 10 Absentee Election Bd., 762 F. Supp. 1354, 1358 (D. Ariz. 1990) ("voting absentee[] is a privilege and convenience").<sup>15</sup>

12 Plaintiffs are also unlikely to prevail on their argument that the legislation is 13 "unjustified." Only severe burdens on the fundamental right to vote are subject to strict 14 scrutiny and require a narrowly tailored, compelling state interest. See Ariz. Libertarian 15 Party v. Reagan, 798 F.3d 723, 730 (9th Cir. 2015). By comparison, election regulations 16 imposing slight burdens need only have a rational basis. Libertarian Party of Wash. v. 17 Munro, 31 F.3d 759, 761 (9th Cir. 1994); see also Dudum v. Arntz, 640 F.3d 1098, 1106 18 (9th Cir. 2011) ("voting regulations are rarely subjected to strict scrutiny"). Under this 19 "less exacting review," "a State's important regulatory interests" over elections "will 20 usually be enough to justify reasonable, nondiscriminatory restrictions." Timmons v. Twin 21 Cities Area New Party, 520 U.S. 351, 358 (1997) (internal quotations omitted); Schrader 22 v. Blackwell, 241 F.3d 783, 790-91 (6th Cir. 2001) (party challenging reasonable, 23 nondiscriminatory election regulation bears a "heavy constitutional burden").

<sup>25</sup> <sup>14</sup> As stated, Plaintiffs have provided no quantitative evidence that would allow the Court to assess the number of voters who allegedly rely on early ballot collection. 26

See also McDonald v. Bd. of Election Comm'rs of Chicago, 394 U.S. 802, 810-11 27 (1969); Qualkinbush v. Skubisz, 826 N.E.2d 1181, 1192 (Ill. App. 2005) (quoting Griffin

v. Roupas, No. 02 C 5270, 2003 WL 22232839, at *3 (N.D. Ill. Sept. 22, 2003)) ("there is 28 no corresponding fundamental right to vote by absentee ballot").

Case 2:16-cv-01065-DLR Document 152 Filed 07/19/16 Page 12 of 20

Here, Plaintiffs do not dispute that the State has a legitimate interest in election

2 integrity and fraud prevention. See Purcell v. Gonzalez, 549 U.S. 1, 4 (2006) ("Confidence in the integrity of our electoral processes is essential to the functioning of 3 4 our participatory democracy. Voter fraud drives honest citizens out of the democratic 5 process and breeds distrust of our government."). And Plaintiffs' own expert admits that 6 absentee ballot fraud is more prevalent than in-person voting fraud. See Ex. 15, at 282:16-7 283:6. Plaintiffs nevertheless argue these interests "are entirely unsupported by any concrete evidence."<sup>16</sup> This is simply not correct. H.B. 2023's legislative history included 8 9 extensive testimony concerning abuses of the existing early ballot collection process, such 10 as impersonation of election officials and delivery of unsealed ballots. Ex. 2, ¶40; Ex. 7 11 ¶ 18-21; Ex. 14, ¶ 74. The Legislature had no obligation to confirm the veracity of these LAW OFFICES Dne Arizona Center, 400 E. Van Buren, Suite 1900 Phoenix, Arizona 85004-2202 662.382.6000 12 reports before enacting H.B. 2023. See F.C.C. v. Beach Commc'ns, Inc., 508 U.S. 307, Snell & Wilmer 13 315 (1993) ("[A] legislative choice is not subject to courtroom fact-finding and may be 14 based on rational speculation unsupported by evidence or empirical data"). 15

Similarly, Plaintiffs provide no authority to support their contention that a state can only enact anti-election-fraud legislation in response to past fraud within the state. "Outlawing criminal activity before it occurs is not only a wise deterrent, but also sound public policy." Lee II, 2016 WL 2946181, at *26 (emphasis added). This is especially true with respect to H.B. 2023 given the documented incidents in other states in which early or absentee ballots have been tampered with by ballot harvesters. Ex. 2, ¶ 46; Ex. 23, at 9 (criminal indictment in the Superior Court of New Jersey, describing the unsealing of and tampering with voted absentee ballots).<sup>17</sup>

Furthermore, the "public perception that [election fraud is] a legitimate concern," in and of itself, provides a compelling reason to enact "preemptive legislation deterring such criminal activity." Lee II, 2016 WL 2946181, at *23; see also Beatie v. Davila, 132

1 Cal. App. 3d 424, 433 (1982) (despite finding no actual fraud, the court stated that 2 "because of the potential for wrongdoing, we suggest the Legislature reexamine the 3 practice of absentee ballot solicitation"). That justification applies here since one of 4 Plaintiffs' experts readily admits that there is a widespread impression among Americans 5 that election fraud is a problem. Ex. 15, at 289:15-18.

6 Plaintiffs contend (Doc. 85, at 12) that the Legislature could have enacted a weaker 7 version of H.B. 2023 or simply done nothing at all and relied on existing election fraud 8 safeguards. These arguments are irrelevant to rational basis review. Beach, 508 U.S. at 9 313 (rational basis review does not provide "a license for courts to judge the wisdom, 10 fairness, or logic of legislative choices"). It was not unreasonable for the Legislature to 11 believe that, like many other states, Arizona needed legislation to prevent the mass collection of early ballots.<sup>18</sup> Nor was it unreasonable for the Legislature to determine that 12 in light of the State's extensive regulation relating to in-person voting, more regulation of 13 14 early voting was needed. Ex. 2, ¶¶ 44-45. Lastly, it was not unreasonable for the 15 Legislature to conclude that in order to deter such conduct, criminal penalties were 16 necessary. See Soules v. Kauaians for Nukolii Campaign Comm., 623 F. Supp. 657, 664 17 (D. Haw. 1985), judgment aff'd in part, rev'd in part on other grounds, 849 F.2d 1176 18 (9th Cir. 1988) ("[E]ven if absentee balloting creates a greater potential for fraud, this 19 does not warrant invalidation of absentee voting ... especially where other measures, 20 such as criminal laws, exist to protect the integrity of elections."); see Peterson v. City of 21 San Diego, 34 Cal. 3d 225, 231 (1983).

Simply, Plaintiffs' second-guessing of the Legislature's wisdom should be directed to the legislative or referendum processes. See Nat'l Fed'n of Indep. Bus. v. Sebelius, 132
S. Ct. 2566, 2579 (2012) ("[Legislative] decisions are entrusted to our Nation's elected leaders, who can be thrown out of office if the people disagree with them.").

3. H.B. 2023 does not violate the freedom of association (Count IV).

Plaintiffs fail to establish they are likely to prevail on their claim that H.B. 2023 infringes on the freedom of association of those that harvest ballots (Count IV). The Motion to Dismiss explained that this claim is not facially plausible, (Doc 108 at 16-17), and none of the limited evidence in support of Plaintiffs' Motion rebuts this basic flaw.

Plaintiffs admit (Doc. 85, at 13) Count IV is subject to a balancing test, under which election regulations only receive strict scrutiny if they impose a severe burden. See Ariz. Libertarian Party, 798 F.3d at 729-30 (every election regulation, "at least to some degree," affects the right to associate, but slight burdens may be justified by state's "important regulatory interests" concerning elections) (internal citations omitted). Plaintiffs must establish H.B. 2023 will impose a severe burden on association because, as discussed, H.B. 2023 easily satisfies the rational-basis review applicable to lesser burdens.

Plaintiffs have not provided, and could not possibly provide, any evidence that 13 H.B. 2023 will impose a severe burden on the ability to associate.<sup>19</sup> "First Amendment 14 protection [extends] only to conduct that is inherently expressive." Rumsfeld v. FAIR, Inc., 547 U.S. 47, 66 (2006). There is nothing "inherently expressive" about the actual conduct prohibited by H.B. 2023—the administrative act of physically collecting and delivering a completed early ballot. Nothing in H.B. 2023 prevents an individual or association from (1) asking voters whether they have returned their early ballot or providing reminders; 19 (2) educating voters on how to complete their early ballots or applicable deadlines; or 20 (3) explaining how and where an early ballot may be returned. Ex. 12, at 99:19-103:22. 21 Nor does H.B. 2023 prevent anyone from transporting voters to outgoing mailboxes or 22 polls, helping them register to vote, or otherwise engaging with them as constituents. 23

Even if the physical collection and delivery of an early ballot was "inherently 24 expressive"—and it is not—Arizona has many laws that reasonably restrict association 25

&lt;sup>19</sup> As discussed in the Motion to Dismiss, because no Plaintiff alleges they actually collect 27 early ballots, (see Doc. 12 ¶¶ 15-30), Plaintiffs fail to state any claim that the alleged 28 impact from H.B. 2023 on freedom of association will be felt by them. (Doc. 108, at 16).

1 with individuals actively engaged in the voting process, as discussed above. These laws 2 do not violate the First Amendment. See PG Publ'g Co., 705 F.3d at 113 ("there is no 3 protected First Amendment right of access to a polling place"); United Food & 4 Commercial Workers Local 1099, 364 F.3d at 748 ("[A] state may require persons 5 soliciting signatures to stand 100 feet from the entrances to polling places without running 6 afoul of the Constitution."). Plaintiffs attempt to draw a comparison to cases involving 7 regulations on voter registration, arguing (Doc. 85, at 13) that "there is no principled 8 distinction between criminalizing the collection of voter registration forms and early 9 ballots." Not so. Voter registration forms and completed ballots raise different election 10 integrity concerns. By destroying or altering early ballots, a ballot harvester might change 11 an election result. See Ex. 14, ¶ 79 (detailing prosecutions for early ballot fraud in other 12 states).

4. Plaintiffs' "partisan fencing" theory (Count V) is not an independent claim and is unsupported by evidence.

14 Plaintiffs' claim that H.B. 2023 was enacted with the intent to discriminate against 15 Democrat voters (Count V) will fail. Importantly, Plaintiffs do not assert any claim that 16 H.B. 2023 was enacted with the intent to discriminate based on race. This distinction is 17 critical because, as discussed in the Intervenor-Defendants' Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 108 18 at 17), "the term 'partisan fencing' does not create an independent cause of action." Lee I, 19 2015 WL 9274922, at *10. The term simply provides a "different theory" for proving that 20 an election regulation imposes a severe and unjustified burden on voting or associational 21 rights. Id.; see also Lee II, 2016 WL 2946181, at *26 (partisan fencing "is somewhat of an 22 aberration;" "Even if the evidence had revealed that partisan advantage was a latent 23 motive in enacting [election regulation], it would not offend the First or Fourteenth 24 Amendment."); Vieth v. Jubelirer, 541 U.S. 267, 281 (2004) (political gerrymandering 25 claims are nonjusticiable political questions). The "partisan fencing" claim thus fails for 26 same reasons discussed above concerning Counts II and IV.

Even if "partisan fencing" could stand alone as an independent claim—and it cannot—there is no actual evidence that the motive behind H.B. 2023 was to disenfranchise Democrats. Plaintiffs primarily rely on Dr. Lichtman, a historian who opines on the intent behind H.B. 2023 based on a selective review of legislative history and without interviewing any legislator who actually voted on it. Ex. 15, at 118:6-122:6, 4 134:14-137:18. Another court recently rejected Dr. Lichtman's similar attempt to provide a legal opinion on legislative intent. McCrory, 2016 WL 1650774, at *140-41 ("Dr. Lichtman's ultimate opinions on legislative intent . . . constituted nothing more than his attempt to decide the ultimate issue for the court . . . The court doubts seriously that this is the proper role for expert testimony."). This Court should do the same.

9 Dr. Lichtman's legal opinions about H.B. 2023's intent rely on an unsupported 10 determination that the Legislature's interest in preventing election fraud was "pretextual." 11 Ex. 14, ¶¶ 69-70. His opinions are undermined by: (1) the legislative history discussing 12 abuse of the ballot collection system in Arizona (Ex. 4, ¶¶ 7-9, 18-19; Ex. 14, ¶¶ 71-76), 13 and (2) previous incidents in other states involving tampering with early ballots, which 14 Dr. Lichtman admits he did not consider. Ex. 2, ¶¶ 46-47; Ex. 15, at 258:6-13; Ex. 23, at 15 9. Even had there been no confirmed incidents of fraud, the Legislature has a legitimate 16 and non-partisan interest in preventing fraud before it occurs or in response to public 17 concern. See Lee II, 2016 WL 2946181, at \*23, 26. As H.B. 2023's sponsor noted: "To be 18 honest, it's important to anyone who cares about maintaining and protecting the integrity 19 of their vote, honestly, irrespective of their party affiliation." Ex. 9, at 9:21-10:2 (emphasis added); Ex.  $2 \P 48^{20}$ 20

21 Plaintiffs' contend (Doc. 85, at 16) they have "direct evidence" that H.B. 2023 was 22 intended to suppress Democrats, but this is not accurate. Plaintiffs have inferred from 23 different statements—some made by persons who did not vote on H.B. 2023—about what 24 they believe those speakers "really meant," based on their incorrect assumption that the 25 election-fraud justification was "pretextual." For example, Plaintiffs reference (Doc. 85, at <sup>27</sup> Dr. Lichtman's contentions concerning the alleged "irregularity" of the legislative process leading to H.B. 2023 are similarly unavailing. H.B. 2023 followed the normal 28 legislative process. Ex. 4, ¶¶ 6-17; Ex. 14, ¶¶ 40-48.

Plaintiffs' assertions are unsupported.

Plaintiffs cannot demonstrate that they will suffer irreparable harm. B.

Plaintiffs must demonstrate not only that irreparable harm is "possible" without an injunction, but that it is "likely." Alliance for the Wild Rockies v. Cottrell, 632 F.3d 1127, 1131 (9th Cir. 2011) (citing Winter, 555 U.S. at 22).<sup>21</sup> This requires "an intensely factual inquiry requiring development of a full record" and cannot rely on "declarations from 10 individuals who are not parties to the litigation" who purport to provide evidence the "law severely burdens anyone." Gonzalez v. Ariz., 485 F.3d 1041, 1050 (9th Cir. 2007).<sup>22</sup> 12

13 Here, no Plaintiff has shown that they are likely to be irreparably harmed by H.B. 14 2023. Plaintiffs offer no evidence of a single voter unable to vote because of H.B. 2023, 15 much less any Plaintiff unable to vote. Nor have Plaintiffs offered any evidence that H.B. 16 2023 will impose any meaningful burden on any expressive conduct protected by the First 17 Amendment. At most, H.B. 2023 may make early voting slightly more inconvenient for 18 some unquantified number of voters who are not parties to this case. This is insufficient to 19 show irreparable harm. "[I]nconvenience does not result in a denial of meaningful access 20 to the political process." Jacksonville Coal. for Voter Prot., 351 F. Supp. 2d at 1335.

21 Plaintiffs' Motion and subsequent discovery has exposed that Plaintiffs' real issue 22 with H.B. 2023 is that they believe Democrats will lose a partisan advantage. See Doc. 86 23 (Decl. of S. Gallardo), ¶18 ("it is well-known that left-leaning advocacy organizations"

- 16 -

<sup>24</sup> <sup>21</sup> This, of course, assumes that Plaintiffs have shown any injury and have standing to 25 bring their claims, which the Intervenor-Defendants dispute. See generally Doc. 108, at 2-5; see also O'Shea v. Littleton, 414 U.S. 488, 497 (1974) (plaintiffs lacked standing to 26 complain of speculative injury that only occurs if they "proceed to violate an unchallenged law and if they are charged, held to answer, and tried in any proceedings"). 27 <sup>22</sup> Plaintiffs' declarations are objectionable under the FRE for a variety of reasons. See Ex. 28 21, Chart of Evidentiary Objections.

1 and Democratic partisan groups use [ballot harvesting] far more effectively than others"). 2 Plaintiffs thus seek—for partisan reasons—to strike down a law implementing reasonable 3 security and integrity measures. See id. (admitting that "Democratic-leaning organizations" 4 were better at ballot collection than Republicans were"); Ex. 22, Depo. of D. Berman, at 5 95:5-7 (Plaintiffs' expert admits that primary drivers of concerns regarding H.B. 2023 are 6 partisan issues); Ex. 3, at 32:4-13, 34:5-10 (admitting organization would not collect a 7 ballot if a voter supported the opposing candidate and stating "[t]he extent to which those 8 folks voted or not voted, if they didn't support our candidate, that was on someone else's responsibility"); Ex. 18 at  $\P\P$  5, 8.<sup>23</sup> These partisan motives do not constitute irreparable 9 10 harm, which is "the sine qua non for all injunctive relief." Frejlach v. Butler, 573 F.2d 11 1026, 1027 (8th Cir. 1978).

C. The balance of the equities favors Defendants.

Granting an injunction would mean speculation prevails over actual data. "Data from actual implementation of an election law are precisely the sort of electoral information that courts are encouraged to consider, because they permit an understanding of the effect of the law based on 'historical facts rather than speculation.'" McCrory, 2016 WL 1650774, at *72 (citing Purcell v. Gonzalez, 549 U.S. 1, 6 (2006) (Stevens, J., concurring)). No voter is denied the opportunity to vote by H.B. 2023.

D. Upholding HB 2023 promotes the public interest.

"There is no question about the legitimacy or importance of the State's interest in counting only the votes of eligible voters" Crawford v. Marion Cty. Election Bd., 553 U.S.
181, 196 (2008). H.B. 2023 protects the integrity of elections. See Decl. of M. Johnson (Ex. 19), ¶¶ 10, 13; Decl. of L. Landrum-Taylor (Ex. 20), ¶¶ 12, 15. It does not limit the ability to vote, but only regulates early voting by mail similar to in-person voting.

25 III. CONCLUSION

The Court should allow H.B. 2023 to take effect.

<sup>28 &</sup>lt;sup>23</sup> See also Decl. of Charlene Fernandez (Doc. 95), ¶¶ 10, 18 (implying that voters who allow her campaign to collect their early ballots and deposit them will vote for her).
